

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a decision-making route control system, an IP network is constructed by using the routing protocol, and general protocols of SNMP and ICMP. Thus, the route can be switched at the time of route trouble and under particular conditions without arrangement of particular routers by monitoring a state of a network system or a computer previously decided as the monitored object.